COLLEGE GAMES TO-DAY. PRINCETON VS. CARLISLE INDIANS AND OTHER BIG CONTESTS.

ill be another highly interesting afteron on the gridiron field, though not marked by such important games as were played last Satur-There are, however, some contests to-day that will draw forth immense crowds. The chief of these, perhaps, is the Princeton game against the Carlisle Indians at Manhattan Field, in this The Carlisle Indians have an extremely formidable aggregation. They beat the Quakers bandily a few weeks ago, and scored eleven points against the hitherto invincible Harvard team. The are said to be in excellent condition, and expedient to play Princeton an exceedingly close game, with even a secret hope of winning out. Experts look for a Princeton victory, even though it may be by a narrow margin. It has been noted in past years | the that the Carlisle Indians generally do not close the season with quite the strength that marks their mid-season games. This will certainly be hardly fought a contest as is to be witnessed in New-York this season.

Another game of great interest is that between the University of Pennsylvania and the University of Michigan at Philadelphia. The Ann Arbor eleven is pretty near the top of the Western teams, and its coach declares that unless the Quakers play much better than they dld at Chicago two weeks so these Michigan men are going to win a victory. Any games between representative universities East and West are always full of interest. The Quakers have been continuing their poor work all the week, and they have repeatedly allowed themselves to be bested in the afternoon's practice. It remains to be seen whether they will take a brace for this afternoon or remain in their slough of Harvard and Yale both have fairly stiff practice Dartmouth at Cambridge, and Yale against the Pennsylvania State College team at New-Haven. Harvard will without doubt play largely a substitute eleven-at any rate, after the first few minutes, reserving her men for the Yale game next Saturday, particularly as Dartmouth is in rather poor shape this season. Yale will have a somewhat harder game on her hands, for the Pennsylvania State College men have shown good form this season, and early in October won from West Point and later held Princeton down to two touchdowns.

Cornell is secretly somewhat apprehensive over her game with Lafayette at Ithaca to-day, for the Lafayette eleven has shown up handsomely this season, defeating the Quakers and overwhelming Lehigh, whom Cornell beat by a much smaller score Lehigh, whom Cornell beat by a much smaller score only a few weeks ago. The Columbia-West Point game should be a first rate contest. Previous to Election Day one would readily have picked Columbia out as the winner, but in their present shape it looks as if it would be a close thing. Williams plays against Amherst in a championship game of the New-England College League. The games just mentioned and the other leading contests for to-day are as follows:

Princeton vs. Carlisle Indians, at New-York. University of Pennsylvania vs. University of Michigan, at Philadelphia.

Harvard vs. Dartmouth, at Cambridge.

Yale vs. Pennsylvania State College, at New-Haven.

PRINCETON COACHERS CONFIDENT. Princeton, N. J., Nov. 10.-Members of the football tesm had practice this afternoon in preparation for the game with the Carlisle Indians in New-York to-morrow. Light signal practice was indulged in This was secret and lasted only twenty minutes Wheeler and Hutchinson were both out and will play to-morrow. All the men are in excellent condition. The coaches expect a hard game with the Indians, but have expressed themselves as conpionship or otherwise return from New-Haven a sad and disgruntled lot of men. Realizing the shortness of the time before the final contest, the coaches, Trainer Christie and Captain Edwards have been bending every effort to round out the eleven into championship form, and have begun to see the good effects of their unceasing labor.

In the last week the men have worked together in the best way desirable, and the concerted action of the team as a whole has at last been welded into form. Every detail of the game has received careful consideration, each player has received indi-vidual attention, and the full corps of coaches have worked together for bringing about that solidarity teams of the past. With the exception of an occasional lapse, the eleven has developed sufficiently to need only touching up here and there before it leaves for the Elm City. The defence has improved wonderfully in the last ten days, so that it is now wellnigh invulnerable. The offence has also come to the front, and with two weeks more of steady practice the team in this particular ought to be able to cope successfully with Yale's back field. The loss of Reiter, who was injured in the Brown game a week ago, seriously impaired the rear of the line, but Dr. Wright has assured the conches that the halfback will be able to enter practice about the middle of next week, so that, barring further accident, he will play on November 25.

WORK OF THE BACKS. Wheeler's ankle has been turned into normal shape, and, with Mattie as first substitute, no fears are entertained as regards the fullback. Hutchinson and Duncan are now finishing the race for the quarterback place, and a few days hence this position will be definitely decided. Both are playing a hard game. The former is better on running back punts, but Duncan is superior to him on interference. McCord and Levick are keeping up a fast pace for left halfback, with the preference in favor of McCord. He hits the line with tremendous force and runs low. Levick charges well, but his light weight and lack of experience are against him. Kafer was out this week, and may remain in practice for the rest of the season. Knight and Burke have also made fair showings at halfback. There seems to be no room for new men in the line. Poe and Palmer are sure of their places, and will undoubtedly fringe the line in the championship game. Roper and Lathrope have developed into remarkably fine substitutes. Lathrope will probably get first place in case of accident to Poe or Palmer. Hillebrand is unquestionably the star player on the team. Pell has picked up decidedly in the last two weeks, and is now sure of left tackle. Edwards, although not up to his usual form, is steadily creeping into last year's style of playing. Mills, at left guard, has shaken off his indifference, and is playing a commendable game. Booth is the only man of ability for centre. He is about up to his usual form. Mitchell and Lacey will be the substitutes for centre, Dana for left guard and Lloyd for left tackle.

TEAM PRACTICALLY CHOSEN. force and runs low. Levick charges well, but his TEAM PRACTICALLY CHOSEN. Thus it will be seen that the team now has its bearings, and the positions are practically settled. Proper team spirit pervades the eleven. There only then the last few days' practice will be spent in the perfection of new plays and formations. The secret practice which the coaches started on Thursday will be continued next week behind closed gates, and only those who are closely connected with the team will be admitted. Increasing interest is being manifested by the students in regard to the Yale game, and indications now are that from seven hundred to a thousand students will go up to New-Haven. In the latter part of next week a mass meeting of the students will be held in the university gymnasium and several prominent alumni will address the meeting, urging all the students to give to the team their heartlest support in the final contest, by appearing at the game and cheering for the players.

The coaches have expressed their confidence in the team, and have said they believe that the championship will again fall to Princeton on November 25. then the last few days' practice will be spent in

GREAT ENTHUSIASM AT COLUMBIA. NEARLY A THOUSAND STUDENTS AND A BRASS BAND TURN OUT TO EN-COURAGE THE TEAM.

Enthusiasm bubbled over among the students of Columbia yesterday afternoon when the final practice of the football team preparatory to the game with West Point to-day was held on the field opposite the library. A royal send off was given to the team. Word had been passed around, and when the football men ran on the field nearly one thousand students were assembled. They gave cheer after cheer, and were assisted by a brass band. Accompanied by the band the students sang Columbian songs, adapted to popular airs. The celebration was intended to encourage the men on the eleven to attempt to retrieve their defeat of Election Day. A special West Shore

Sanford put the 'varsity through signal practice yesterday, to give the men a rest. In the game to-day Bruce will probably play in place of Knapp at left tackle, as the latter is laid up with the grip. Putnam is playing an excellent game at at left tackle, as the latter is laid up with the grip. Putnam is playing an excellent game at quarter, and is expected to direct the playing of the team with good judgment. Morley was tried at kicking, and proved efficient. This added accomplishment makes Morley one of the strongest of the backs. He hits the line hard and low, and is a fast man around the end.

The rest of the afternoon was given up to the two scrub teams. Sanford is giving more attention to the scrubs, with the hope that a strong line can be developed to face the 'varsity. A valuable addition to the squad is Philip Gardner. He came out last spring and showed the most improvement of the inexperienced men. For some reason he did not come out at first this fall, but persuasion from Manager Mitchell induced him to don his suit.

Yesterday morning Ely took the backs in charge and gave them special instruction. Williams was played at tackle, and he may fill that position in the game this afternoon.

The College of Physicians and Surgeons is showing much interest in football, and a team has been organized which will meet the Cornell Physicians and Surgeons' eleven on Manhattan Field November 25. The Columbia "medies" will practise this afternoon for the first time. In the medical school are many veteran players from hig college teams, and a good team will undoubtedly be placed on the griddron.

ANDOVER-EXETER GAME TO-DAY.

Exeter, N. H., Nov. 10.-The greatest event of the year for two of New-England's best known preparatory schools, Phillips-Andover and Phillip Exeter, will be played on the Exeter gridiron tomorrow, and it will be the nineteenth yearly game. As most of the Andover boys go to Yale and the Exeter boys to Harvard, with a sprinkling to other colleges, the contests really count as much in "Prep" circles as the games of the "Big Four" among the colleges. An attendance of ten thousand is expected, and the game is likely to be a fierce one. On form Andover appears to be the favorite this year. morrow, and it will be the nineteenth yearly game fierce one. On for favorite this year.

HORACE MANN, 29; BERKELEY, 0.

Yesterday afternoon at Berkeley Oval the Berkeley School team received a severe defeat at the hands of the Horace Mann School. The final score was 29 to 0. The interference of the Horace Mann team was fine, and it was due rather to its team work than to any individual superiority that so large a score was rolled up. The game was free from slugging and from squabbling over the ref-erce's decisions. Mills's kicking was a feature of the game, as was also Mayberry's tackling. From the start it was evident that Berkeley was outclassed and could not hope to win. Horace Mann by good, straight playing worked the ball steadily down the field, and scored three touchdowns in the first half. In the last two minutes of play Horace Mann played her best, and by short gains worked the ball down to Berkeley's one yard line, where Smith was pushed over for the final touchdown. Horace Mann's goal was only once in danger. Mc-Kee, the captain of the Berkeley team, sprained his ankle in the De La Salle-Berkeley game, and has not been able to play since. Two of Horace Mann's good players were laid up with a broken collarbone and a ruptured muscle. Berkeley will play her next game at Berkeley Oval on Monday with Stevens Preparatory, of Hoboken. The teams lined up as follows: Mann played her best, and by short gains worked

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 16.—Harvard will play Dartmouth to-morrow—an easy game to keep the men up to their work, and to give the substitutes men up to their work, and to give the substitutes a chance to play in the interval between the Yale and Pennsylvania game. The eleven has done little hard work this week, and needs a hard game. The Dartmouth team, however, is a little below last year's standard, and in addition has not de-right halfbacks, Knight, Levick; fullback, Wheeler or Nattis.

YALE'S LINEUP TO-DAY. THE GAME AGAINST PENN STATE COLLEGE-

PRACTICE OF THE WEEK. New-Haven, Conn., Nov. 10 (Special).-The next to of work before the game with Harvard closed with light practice to-day, and to-morrow meets the Pennsylvania State College team The State's favorite formation is a modification of the old guard's back play, and is new to Yale. Captain McBride will probably allow the regulars to play only one half to-day, and in the second will resent a largely substitute eleven. The brace taken in the West Point game has ontinued, and the team is gradually rounding into form. Though hard practice of this week has not have been more or less injured. Trainer Robinson is confident that all his cripples will be in fine condition when they go to Cambridge. It was a great place of good fortune that Schweppe's shoulder was not broken, as was at first thought, but only severely strained. He will without doubt regain his old position of left end in time for the champlonship games, and because of his greater speed Gould. Frank Hinkey is working hard over the ends, and confidently expects to turn out a better pair than last year's. devoted to the ends, and they are showing added speed. The weakness of the tackles, which was so apparent during the early part of the season, has disappeared, for Allen has improved wonderfully, and will probably beat out Hale in the race for left tackle. Allen played the position last season until within a week of the big games, when a severe injury to his shoulder forced him to stop training. The centre trio is still the weakest part of Yale's line. The veteran Brown has maiaria, and can do only light work for a while, although he will be in good shape when he goes to Cambridge. '95, has learned many new points, and is a fixture, not because of his skilful playing, but because of the utter lack of good substitutes for the centre positions. Cutter has decided that he will be positions. Cutter has decided that he will be unable to get into condition, and this leaves only Cunha for centre. H. P. Cross has been playing opposite the big fellow, and has instilled some life into him, but still he is far below the required standard. Behind the line there is little change. The halfbacks have been divided into pairs, of which Sharpe and Richards will probably start the Harvard same, and Adams and Keane will have a chance later. Kelfer has recovered from his attack of water on the knee, and is playing a strong game on the scrubs.

The open practice this week has been devoted to game on the scrubs.

The open practice this week has been devoted to perfecting the kicking department and in giving speed to the ends and tackles in getting after the ball. It is believed here that either McBride or Dupee can outpunt any of Harvard's kickers, and Yale hopes by this means to prevent the Crimson from scoring A great deal of attention has been paid to end runs, both in perfecting the interference as also improved. Even with the marked improvement a great deal mains to be done in the last week, and the ten aches will have to use herole measures to whip to team into shape to hold Harvard down. Alough the undergraduates have not given up all pe, there seems to be little chance of doing better an tieing the game.

LIGHT PRACTICE AT ITHACA.

Ithaca, N. Y., Nov. 10 .- While the Cornell football ice, there were several changes made in the subfore substitute left halfback, is to be displaced. This afternoon Short, Cross and Windsor were all This afternoon Short, Cross and Windsor were all tried as left halfbacks, and it is not improbable that Walbridge will soon have a new understudy for that place. Several plays were practised with success, and may be tried for the first time in the Lafayette game of to-morrow. Alexander was again absent from the practice, as were Caldwell and Walbridge. They will be ready for work to-morrow. It is thought that the Lafayette game will be a hard one, but there is little doubt that Cornell will win by a smaller score than from Columbia. Following is the lineup for to-morrow:

Ends, Davali and Taussig; tackles, Folger and Alexander; guards, Warner and Caldwell; centre, Pierson; quarterback, Young; halfbacks, Walbridge and Morrison, and fullback, Starbuck.

into the fight between Curley Brown and 'Dan" Murray on Thursday afternoon at the Newport track, the judges to-day ruled off the turf for life the following persons: H. D. Brown, George Keating, "Ted" Wilker, trainer, and Charles Keating. Both Keatings have been employed by "Jake" Holman, the starter, as flagmen. Brown is one of the best known turfmen in America. For several years he was starter at Newport and several other years he was stafter at Newport and several other racetracks. This year he has been racing a stable of horses. He owns three of the fastest sprinters in the West in Merry Day, Gold d'Or and Dolly Weithoff.

CYCLING.

"MAJOR" TAYLOR BREAKS RECORD FOR THE HALF-MILE.

Chicago, Nov. 10 .- "Major" Taylor, the colored rider, broke another bicycle record to-day at Garfield Park by following his motorcycle for half a mile in 0:41. The best previous record was 0:414-5, held by "Eddle" McDuffee. A stiff breeze was blowing at the time Taylor made his trial.

James O'Neill, the chairman of the Bridge Com-mittee, has not been idle of late, and he said recently that he was working to secure his committee of one hundred before he would make any furthe announcement. He will not appoint any wheelmen on this committee who will not get out and work Of the 108 invitations he has sent out up to date seventy-five favorable replies have been received. seventy-five favorable replies have been received. As soon as this committee of one hundred gets to work in earnest, it is thought, the plans for a wheelway over the Brooklyn Bridge will assume tangible form. Mr. C'Neill does not agree with some of the members of the old committee, that the wheelmen should not suggest plans for a wheelway. He believes that prominent engineers should be consulted and a plan agreed upon which will be practical in every way. After securing the indorsement of these engineers the committee will go with the plan to Commissioner Shea and demand to know why wheelmen cannot get their rights on the structure. None of the wheelmen favor having any further communication with Engineer Martin. According to an English exchange the Transvani war will at least have the credit of being the first campaign in which bicycles have been employed by regular troops; and from the frequency with by regular troops; and from the frequency with which they are mentioned in dispatches it is evident that the riders are doing good service. This fact, coupled with the order of Sir Redvers Buller, that departmental officers at bases might have the option of using their cycles instead of horses, and receive an allowance in lieu of rations, leads wheeling enthusiasts to hope that the military authorities are at length beginning to perceive the practical value of the bicycle in warfare. The advantages derived from the use of wide tires are summarised by an expert as follows: "Fewer horses for the same work. More work fulness. Saving of time in passing over roads. Saving in wear and tear of harness and vehicles. Saving of time in repairs. Saving from one-half to two-thirds cost of wheels. Saving for taxes, Reduced cost of damages. More satisfaction and less vexation." by the same horses. The purchaser of a locomobile recently inquired of the Commissioners whether a permit would be required before the ma-chine could be placed in the streets. The question was referred to the Board which examines station-ary engineers, and also to the Superintendent of Streets.

YACHTING.

MASTERS OF BIG PLEASURE VESSE'S EXPECT TO SPEND CHRISTMAS HERE.

PLANS MAY BE CHANGED IF IT IS DECIDED TO TAKE THE COLUMBIA TO THE MEDI-

TERRANEAN FOR RACING. It is understood that most of the owners of the largest yachts will spend their Christmas at home this year, and that the exodus for the Mediter ranean and other southern waters will be small. Colonel Oliver H. Payne's magnificent vessel, the Aphrodite, has almost completed her preparations for the winter, and from the care and thoroughness of these preparations it is judged by the crew now on board that the yacht is intended to make a long stay at Manning's basin, and will not fit out again till next spring. The big yards have all been removed from the two forward masts, and the remaining upright sticks have been treated tion against the weather. The steel deckhouses, which are covered with fine mahogany, have re ceived their winter protections. The sails and all the running rigging have been removed and stored Since this was done Captain C. W. Scott went east. on a visit. He was in charge of the ship all summer, when Colonel Payne cruised to the North Sea and the Baitic. The yacht returned in time for the America's Cup races, all of which she attended Commodore J. Pierpont Morgan's Corsair was the last of the big yachts to come in from the sea to rest. She has been one of the most continuously hustled yachts of the season since she made her first appearance about the time the defender Columbia had her first race off Sandy Hook. The simultaneous appearance of these two new craft in New-York waters was one that said a good deal for the value of Commodore Morgan as the leader of yachting in America. Both boats were gems in their respective ways. The Columbia was then being brought out as the best product to her in the public interest was the Corsair, which then appeared as the flagship of the New-York Yacht Club. On the day of that first race between the Columbia and the Derender the Corsair moved about from one ten-mile mark to another with the an ocean liner. Twelve and fifteen knot steamers seemed to travel like old stage coaches that day. Since then the yacht has been on the go pretty nearly all the time, the Columbia's trials at Newport, social visits to Bar Harbor and frequent trips up the Hudson keeping her moving. In the summer months Commodore Morgan lives on board a good deal. After business hours he often sleeps or his country house, especially in the hottest weather. Men with whom he has to talk business sometimes go with him to the yacht after office evening breezes.

THE CORSAIR IN SOUTH BROOKLYN. At present the Corsair is at Manning's Basin, moored to the pier opposite Colonel Payne's Aphrodite. Here the two biggest steam yachts that were added to American yacht lists last year are side by side, where they provide an excellent chance for comparison of the two vessels. Corsair looks larger at the wharf than she does when moving along the water. There are smaller black yachts that have a somewhat similar appear-ance—two pole masts, a funnel and an awning—and Corsair from others. Lying lower in the water, dite does, although the two yachts are of the same length. Colonel Payne's big three master, with her full complement of wide reaching yards on her two front masts and her high brass bridge, has an appearance so imposing that she really seems big-appearance so imposing that she really seems bigger than she is.

John R Drexel's big three master, the Sultana, came to South Brooklyn yesterday, and is now lying at one of the piers in the Erie Basin, dismantling for the winter. The Sultana is one of the world cruisers, and has frequently been away for long periods, up the Mediterranean and in different foreign waters. Last summer, at Newport, the Drexels entertained largely on board. The yacht also appeared at New-York for the racing. Her yards are being removed, and apparently she will not go out again until next year.

Close to the Sultana is the three masted auxiliary called the Utowana, which has just returned with Allison V. Armour, of the New-York Yacht Club. He will spend his Christmas in this country, after his four months' cruise in the Baltic and elsewhere.

Miss Susan De Forest Day, of the New-York Yacht Club, has taken possession of her former suite at the Plaza, since she laid up the Scythlan after the Cup races. She had lived on the Scythlan since last spring, and in the early part of the year started a new form of entertainment, which might be called a yachting 5 o'clock tea. She gave two of these while the Scythlan was at her regular moorings off Whitestone, where there is a good anchorage, a New-York Yacht Club station and half-hour railway service with New-York. On those occasions four or five steam launches were kept busy ferrying the people from the shore to the yacht, and about 5:30 o'clock both decks were filed with old friends. The awnings were spread over the upper deck, and one of the refreshment tables was under the awning aft of the deckhouse, and the other was in the dining room at the foot of the forward companionway.

After Johning in the ordinary cruise of her club Miss Day went to Bar Harbor, and then to Canada. This trip was continued to Labrador, where the Scythlan was delayed in a peculiar way. A large leeberg drifting down from the north grounded in front of the harbor in which the yacht was anchoring. This completely bloc

THE SAGAMORE IN WINTER QUARTERS. The steam yacht Sagamore, the three masted topsail schooner belonging to John H. Hanan, of the Atlantic Yacht Club, is a vessel that is well known because of its attendance at all the principal regattas. Mr. Hanan generally attends the known because of its attendance at all the principal regattas. Mr. Hanan generally attends the races sailed by his sons in their 51-foot racer, the Acushla II, and he was also a frequent visitor at Newport when the Columbia-Defender races were being sailed. Mr. Hanan is fond of having his friends around him when he is out on the Sagamore, as those in the Larchmont Yacht Club have reason to know. The yacht is now in winter quarters at South Brooklyn.

Henry Belknap, of the New-York Yacht Club, was at Manning's yesterday to see his yacht, the Magnolia, which is laid up in the Erie Basin. Mrs. Belknap and young Master Belknap were with him. The Magnolia is generally off to Florida by this time, and it may be that Mr. Belknap came in from his house at Greenport to give orders about preparing the boat. The Magnolia is built expressly for Southern waters, and is something like a houseboat in ner interior. She was built and designed by the Herreshoffs, and is a twin screw schooner of 160 feet in length and only 4 feet 10 inches draught.

Officers on board these yachts and many others are of opinion that there will be little foreign cruising this winter by American yacht fleets. But they are not prepared to say what the result will be if the Columbia goes to the Mediterranean to race with the Shamrock, the Boaa, the Emperor's Meteor and the new Watson craft for Mr. Rose. The general opinion is that the news of the next month in yachting circles may alter the present intentions of many yacht owners, and it is thought that if the Columbia goes across she will not be the only American yacht to be present at the Riviera racing. As this takes place late in February and in March, the yachts would not in any case go before the new year, and yacht masters are nearly all confident of having a quiet Christmas with their families. THE ERL KING COALING FOR CAPE HORN.

The steam yacht Erl King, which belongs to an American and files the flag of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club, of England, was taking in coal at the pockets on Manning's wharf, in the Erie Basin, yesterday. She is about to leave here for the West Indies, but the officers on the ship do not yet know when the craft will start. The yacht does not appear in any of the American yacht lists, but the owner, Mr. Moxham, is a member of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club, and carries the blue ensign of the Naval Reserve. His home is in Lorain, Iowa, and he is at present there. After two months in the Baltic, the Eri King sailed from Cowes on September 3 and first called at the Azores, after which, the presentered a hurriege of the Royal September 3 and first called at the Azores, after which, the presentered a hurriege of the Royal September 3 and first called at the Azores, after which the presentered a hurriege of the Royal September 3 and first called at the Azores. which she encountered a hurricane a few hundred miles this side of St. Michaels, and had hard weather all the way to the Bermudas. She arrived here on Thursday, September 21, and is on her way to round the Horn. She will visit China and way to round the Horn. She will visit China and the Philippines and return to England by way of the Suez Canal, thus encircling the world. This stout steel vessel, with her high bulwarks and general seaworthy appearance, is under command of Captain Derham. She is a screw brigantine, built at Leith in 1894, and registers 444 tons gross. In length she is 180 feet, with 25.3 feet of beam and 15.15 feet in depth, with two decks and five water-tight bulkheads.

The yacht was brought here by Mr. Moxham, so that his guests on board could see the America's Cup races. These guests were nearly all Americans, and included Mr. and Mrs. Pullman, of Louisville.
